One Page Profile

What does the child need to feel well supported?

Give her time and patience.

- Introduce yourself before you work with her.
- Provide lots of information to what is happening around her.

Show her how things work.

Make sure the floor is clear.

- She needs people to support her to be independent
- She loves cuddles especially if she is anxious or scared. She shows this by crying and putting her fingers in my ears. Re assure her by telling her she is safe.
- If it gets all too much she will need a nap in the afternoon
- Have a range of tactile and auditory toys for her to play with

What people like and admire about the child

X..... is caring and helpful

Also determined to succeed

She loves to be independent where possible

She has a sense of humour

She may start out as shy; she takes time to engage with unfamiliar people. However, she is weighing everything up.

She listens to her mum

She has good attention and engagement

Although she doesn't talk at the moment, you can understand what is wrong and if she is angry.

What are the child's favourite things and what do they like to do?

X......'s family is everything to her.

Being happy and feeling secure especially when there is lots of noise or noise she is unsure about.

Familiarity is very important to her. She needs time to get to know new people and she needs to be looked after by people she knows well and who have got to know her well.

Everyone, especially her family, want to make sure no one gives up on her or puts limits on what she can do or be.

Being able to experience things at her own pace.

Singing and dancing.